20-22, MALVERN TEA-ROOM

-- — (and --- ACADEMY STREET)

BI 8/88 — July 1897 — Block, Ayr Street, by Henry Brown, baker, and David Moore, joiner. Building is very active in Troon just now.

BI 11/123 — June 1900 — The hitherto rather unaspiring seaport of Troon gives at last some promise of mounting to a somewhat higher grade in the scale of the coast towns of Ayrshire. Its standing is on the ascent as a shipping and loading place, and it even begins to put forth some not altogether unwarrantable claims to suitability as a summer and watering resort. The full page illustration may be taken as some measure of the renewed enterprise of the Ayrshire port. The block here somewhat roughly sketched is only in the earlier stages of erection, but even at this early date the assertion is advanced that when completed, it will take rank as quite the handsomest in Troon. The site is at the corner of Academy Street and Ayr Street. Messrs Moore and Brown, Troon, are the proprietary builders and designs and plans for them have been fully prepared by Mr James Hay, architect, Kilmarnock. The apex of the block will be the new and enlarged home of Troon Post Office. ... The new quarters, which are to be entered Whitsunday 1901, will be a great improvement on the old. The bulk of the block .. 3 storeys in height, will be put to general use as shops, offices and dwelling houses.

BN, lxxx, 728 — Post Office opened 24.5.1901. The 3-storey building cost c.£6000.

The New Bank (as opposed to the Old Bank, above (also known as Ironmonger's Row). This is a double villa and 2 villas, all of 2 storeys, erected c.1866 as a building speculation by the late Mr Hunter of Troon. Further north, Umberley was built 1868 for John Cuthbertson

Mackintosh, Old Troon, 1969, 69 — Old Bank Cottage 1830s. Began as a bowling green established by Kilmarnock families using area as a sea-side resort in 1830s. Some of these families built cottages as summer houses - 8 were built, same size and style. c.£200 each. Scheme complete by Martinmas 1836. Most now altered with additional storeys or wings. 2 villas built to N of burn in 1866.

AO, Tu 22.1.1833, 1c — 'Mr McKerrell of Hillhouse has agreed to feu a portion of ground to the north of Burnfoot, sufficient for 75 villas. We like the plan exceedingly. Each feu contains about a rood. A dozen gentlemen belonging to Kilmarnock have already marked off their portions on the plan, and will commence building immediately'.

EG 12565, Tu 20.5.1913, 543a; EG 12575, Tu 24.6.1913, 677a — Kilmarnock District Committee. To discuss proposed Barassie SLD, and SSD, to have same boundaries as existing SWD, SDD. Approved.

17, CESSFORD

List 60, listed 6.8.1990	Built c.1901-02 Large villa with additions; Arts-and-Crafts detailing; asymmetrical elevations, rooflines and wall-heights. Long principal front facing SW. Broad-eaved red tiled roofs, swept and bracketted. Projecting window bays of various designs including ground floor inglenook; polygonal coped crenellated angle turret next to inglenook on SE elevation. Single, mullioned and occasionally transomed windows. Snecked rubble and ashlar, polished dressings, various glazing patterns - mostly plate glass sashes, some leaded panels. Balustraded porte-cochere (polished ashlar) at front is possibly later, glazed and enclosed at an early date. Recessed NW wing (left on main front) an addition, and stonework pattern suggests some alterations to SE elevation at angle turret. Flat-roofed attic dormer; tall stacks. Low rubble built boundary walls with ball finials enclose a sunken garden at front (SW) with a tall rendered wall to NW enclosing a circular garden bench. Gatepiers with pyramid caps resting on small balls. Single storey 9-bay garage block behind has red-tiled roof with raised ridge tiles (as villa) and series of arched and tripartite window openings on far (NW) long flank. Sash and case multi-pane glazing. Notes. Style is reminiscent of some Glasgow villas, e.g. at Pollokshields, by H E Clifford. Davis attributes to James A Morris.

19, SUN COURT, originally LINDISFARNE, and then SOUTH BAR

List 59, listed 30.1.1990	Real Tennis Court built 1905 (i.e during the period of the game's revival) for J O M Clark by Joseph Bickley, who had also designed some English courts. Adjoining large villa, subsequently a hotel, is near contemporary English Arts-and-Crafts by Fryers & Penman of Largs. Only 2 such courts now exist in Scotland, the other being that at Falkland Palace, dating from the time of James V, and claimed as the oldest surviving in the UK. Court continued in use until 1928; buildings were requistioned during the war as a gunnery instruction school, and subsequently served several purposes; court was restored in 1960s and continues in use (1990). Buildings all white-harled, red ashlar dressings, red tile roofs (long roof light over court), assymetrical elevations, some windows mullioned and transomed, some original multi-paned glazing survives, also some timber framing. Villa has 2 storeys, stepped roof lines, tall stacks, some alterations; court is blank-walled, buttressed, light timber framing. Walled garden. Refs inc Butler & Wardie, eds, The Royal Game, 1989, KS 30.9.1905 and Troon DoG 25.9.1905. Bickley designed courts in England are at Moreton Morrell, Canford and Hayling Island. B.

-, MARINE HIGHLAND HOTEL

New List 15 — Listed 31.5.1984. Salmon, Son & Gillespie, 1897, with large addition 1901. First section, main entrance front, snecked red ashlar with polished dressings, slate roofs; 9 bays, 2 storeys and attic; outer and central bays wider, advanced and gabled. Entrance at centre under wide roll moulded round key-stoned arch, 4-light oriel above with balcony to semi-circular arched attic window. Outer bays with simplified Venetian windows to the ground floor, bipartites above with pedimented detail; crown detail on skew putts and apex of gables. Outer gables linked to centre by three recessed bays, round-arched windows to ground, balcony, much altered, linking at 1st floor. All windows in roll mouldings. At rear, projecting gabled bay with circular stair turret, and corbelled turret at north-east. Large 4-storey and attic (1901) addition to South. Gabled bay at west with 4-storey canted bay, decorative finials. 5-storey tower with offset pierced balustrade at east with octagonal turret clasping angle for 4-storeys linked to substantial balcony at 2nd floor level on south face; inner 4 bays with ground and 1st floors linked under round-arched panels, mullion and transom windows to 2nd, small 3-light windows to 3rd. AA 5.3.1896 — We understand that the contracts for this hotel, which is to be got up in a palatial style, have now been arranged. Mason work £8000-£9000, Matthew Muir & Co., Kilmarnock.

TT, F 11.9.1896, 4h — The new hotel on the links is now nearly ready for the roof, and the joiner and other work in the interior will be pushed on during the summer months.

AA, CO 3/8/1/3, Ayr County Council 1895-1898, 233-234 County Council 6.10.1896 — £100 expenditure approved to extend water pipes to new hotel near Craigend.

AA 6.5.1897 — New Hotel opened. Great arched doorway; spacious panelled hall. On one side of this is an L-shaped dining room, 50' long, and on the other a corridor connecting a suite comprising writing, reading, smoking and billiard rooms. In the billiard room, the hammer beams of the tumber roof are grotesquely carved with figures. Both the billiard and smoking rooms have cosily seated neuks round the fires. From the entrance hall a massive oak stair leads to the upper floors. On the first of these is the drawing room; from its windows, and the balconies to which they lead, play on the home green may be witnessed. Altogether the building contains about 70 rooms, a fin-de-siecle feature being a cycle house. All the furniture has been specially designed by the architects ... James Salmon & Son, Glasgow. [BoS Biographies say that job architects for 1897 were James Salmon junior and J Gaff Gillespie, and that the garage addition of 1901, illustrated in B 11.10.1902, is also by Gillespie.]

DUNDONALD ROAD

AA 22.5.1902 Arrangements have been completed by Messrs William Lorimer & Co., house agents, Troon and Glasgow, and a syndicate of Glasgow gentlemen for the erection of a long range of workmen's dwellings and shops in Troon. The site fixed upon is on Dundonald Road and Logan

Drive, and the feu extends from Dundonald Road to the new GSWR works at Barassie. There will be 66 tenements, giving accommodation in one-apartment houses, and 1 and 2 room and kitchen houses for nearly 600 tenants. There will also be 7 large and modern shops. The buildings are to be of Corrie stone, ashlar faced at front and rock-faced ashlar at back wall. Each of the room and kitchen and 2 rooms-and-kitchen houses will have oriel windows in the front room, tiled closes and stained glass staircase windows. The appearance of the houses as shown on the plans indicates that they will be a credit to the syndicate, and to Troon. Mr A R Crawford, Troon and Glasgow, is the architect.
