nr — conversion/extension as IDC headquarters: Robert Dunlop (IDC).
AP, F 22.4.1977, 9d — Bought from Mitchell Brothers, timber merchants, in 1969. Wing added. "The whole building can be converted into a hotel or country club once its function with IDC is finished."
Prospect 28, Autumn 1986 — Perceton House was a different problem again. Set in about 51 acres of wooded grounds nearly two miles east of the town centre, it was acquired by IDC in 1968 for its headquarters. More space was needed, but since the main house is a grade-A listed building, alterations to the external appearance had to be avoided, and any extension had to be sympathetic to the existing building. Furthermore, the extension was limited to three storeys, no higher than the cornices of the old house. The contrast between the black-and-white exterior of the old house and the lawns and the changing tones of surrounding trees is one of the most attractive features of Perceton. External colour was therefore discouraged, the extension had to match the appearance of the old house. The new building, together with its roadways and carparks, was also planned to avoid existing trees.
